Seizure of Deer Antlers

*27. SHRI SOLIPETA RAMACHANDRA REDDY:
SHRI C. RAMACHANDRAIAH:

Will the Minister of ENVIRONMENT AND FORESTS be pleased to state:

(a) whether Government's attention has been drawn to the news-item appearing in Indian Express dated the 31st December, 1999, regarding seizure of three tonnes of deer antlers from poachers;

(b) if so, the facts of the seizure revealed after probe;

(c) how a massacre at such a huge scale went unnoticed; and

(d) the measures proposed to check such trade?

THE MINISTER OF ENVIRONMENT AND FORESTS (SHRI T. R. BAALU): (a) Yes, Sir.

(b) Preliminary investigations conducted by the State Government have revealed that 3 tonnes of antlers seized belong to old stock of shed antlers collected under license issued by the Chief Wildlife Warden, Uttar Pradesh.

(c) Does not arise. As reported by the State Government, the antlers seized belong to the old stock of shed antlers that is shed by the deer as a part of biological process.

(d) An order banning the collection of shed antlers has been issued by the Government of India.

Enrolment of Children in Primary Schools

*Provisional

(b) No, Sir. As the enrolment figures indicate, the enrolment of boys and girls over all has increased during this period. As per the projected population of children in the 6—11 age group made by the Registrar General of Census, the population in this age group is likely to come down by 2001.

(c) As per the National Sample Survey 53rd Round (1997-98), the absolute number of non-literate people in the country is showing a significant decline. By current estimates, the figure which peaked at 328 million in 1991, has already dropped to 294 million in 1997 and will further decrease to 268 million by the end of 2001. 62% persons age 7 and above were literate in 1997.

(d) The Census undertakes a total enumeration based on ability to read and write. The NSS surveys based their findings on appropriately selected samples and ability to read and write.
